4 Days of Love, Romance and Everything Else

Coopmanhuijs was proclaimed a South African National Monument in 1978. The first owner of the property (recorded in 1704) was Albertus Bartholomeus Coopman. The current neo-Georgian architecture of the manor house section dates from 1870 – 1900. Upon entering the foyer at Coopmanhuijs, one is enveloped by a gentle, unpretentious fusion of contemporary design and classic approach, grounded in a respect for the organic and the real. The numerous shops, art galleries, museums, coffee shops, restaurants and myriad other attractions of Stellenbosch are all within easy walking distance of 33 Church Street. In addition, the vibrant and historic university town of Stellenbosch is the perfect base from which to explore the famous Cape Winelands. At Coopmanhuijs, a sense of the history and charm of a bygone era is preserved and teamed with the creations of selected artists and skilled craftsmen.
